

Australian Spiritual Journey October 12- 26 2009

Plans are being finalized for an exciting adventure down under! Uncle Bob Randall, Aborigine elder and the Songman of Australia has offered to help with this trip to capture the heart and imagination of all those who want to experience first hand the magic of Uluru, (Ayers Rock) sacred historic site of the Aborigine people.

Over the years Bob and Mary Jo have worked together and have shared many stories. These experiences have been the highlight of her life and those who traveled with EMP. Mary Jo and Bob have shared the Aborigine culture from central Australia, Queensland and New South Wales and Perth Western Australia. Learn to read the energy of the land and connect with animals. The secrets have been revealed slowly as trust has been built of mutual sharing and caring for each other.

Energy Medicine for Nurses

This newsletter features Kathleen Scacciaferro, RN, MS, CEMP/I, school nurse and past nursing supervisor in critical care nursing. Kathleen is one of the senior TYLEM™ faculty living in Burlington, Vermont. The case examples she shares represent how TYLEM™ (Energy Medicine) enhances what nurses do. They illustrate the unique specialty of TYLEM and nursing blended together to make a unique contribution.

We are launching an Energy Medicine for Nurses Program that will hopefully wet the appetite for nurses to become knowledgeable about the contribution of Energy Medicine to their daily routine. This new program is specific to the profession of nursing and will provide an entry level for nurses into the field with a defined outcome that can be helpful to employers who want to move their organizations into complementary therapies.

I invite you to consider offering one of these new programs in your local community. Call to discuss the possibilities 919=381-4198.

Mary Jo

MISSION

Assist nurses to assume their leadership role in applying Energy Medicine (EM) in health care.

DESCRIPTION

Complementary medicine has impacted health care over the last two decades. Hospitals, university education programs, and mainstream health programs are responding with this influx of knowledge about the human energy system's role in health and healing.

This program is designed to assist nurses in their leadership role of bringing Energy Medicine to patients and families in a variety of settings, as well as helping nurses cope with the tremendous demands on them.

OBJECTIVES

1. Describe Energy Medicine's role in health care today.
2. Describe Energy Medicine research impacting health and healing.
3. Demonstrate Energy Medicine assessments, interventions and evaluations that can be used for different nursing care settings.
4. Describe the theoretical background of the TYLEM used for the Energy Medicine interventions in this program.
5. Practice TYLEM interventions.
6. Share experiences.
7. Discuss ways to teach Energy Medicine Self Care to patients/clients and families based on the content presented in this program.

My Energy Medicine practice is varied and enriched with different clinical experiences in nursing that provide a unique opportunity to combine this knowledge with energy work.

I am the School Nurse at a Middle/ High School in Vermont. Some of my nursing care is providing energetic interventions of TYLEM™ for faculty, staff, and students. Because of my background also as a Critical Care Nurse, I continue to treat clients with medical/surgical issues using Energy Medicine. Here are some examples.

Kathleen Scacciaferro,
RN, MS, CEMP/I

EM FOR SEVERE MIGRAINE

For one of the administrators where I work who was experiencing a severe migraine, I did an Angel Net, Inner Core Balance and pain drain. His migraine was relieved. Since then, he regularly schedules Energy Medicine sessions for a variety of health issues. For knee replacement pain, I used the Inner Core Balance and Energy Integration with relief of these symptoms. For chronic neck pain, I identified a tear in the Hara Line above the Soul Seat that I repaired. This facilitated progress in physical therapy. I have been monitoring his blood pressure since he began taking medication several months ago. Sometimes his blood pressure (BP) is controlled and sometimes not. We began using Energy Medicine as a complement to his medication as an experiment to help control his blood pressure. Today after an intense budget meeting, his BP was 160/90. After Mind Clearing, the Angel Net and the Inner Core Balance, his BP was 126/78.

EM FOR RELATIONSHIPS

The full TYLEM relationship process was used to work on a staff member regarding improving her relationship to her supervisor. In school, she receives energetic first aid. From this work with her, she began referring students to me for Energy Medicine.

EM FOR MANAGING ENERGY

I work with P a student, who is very bright, but has not been successful in the community school setting. I spoke to his mother about Energy Medicine and received permission to work with P. His energetic assessment showed that grounding and field location were his prominent issues. His Hara Line was dangling like a kite that someone let go of the string. He was not even in his field. This explained why he could not concentrate, get his school work completed and was distracted by the slightest noise or movement. The first time I treated P, I did a complete energetic tune-up of chakras, field, Hara Line, Core Star, and Meridians to give him an experience of what it feels like to be a balanced energetic Being. In subsequent sessions, P learned to bring himself into balance. Using the EM chakra, energy field, and hara/core star charts, I taught P about his energy system. He learned to pendle himself to develop a visual relationship to what he feels in his body. I taught him to ground, bring his very expanded field several feet around his body, and center in his field. When P is having a hard time in the classroom. I prompt him to check in with himself energetically. He often refers to being “in” or “out” of his body. We discussed when it is appropriate to be “in” and “out”. He was immediately relieved that he didn’t have to give up being “out”, so he was willing to learn how to be “in”. He is now successfully managing his energy system in school.

EM FOR CANCER PATIENTS

I provided Energy Medicine throughout a colleague’s chemotherapy and radiation therapy for breast cancer. This illness provided the opportunity to work on wounds, beliefs, relationships with siblings and parents, and family dynamics. We used the complete TYLEM™ process – meditation, drawings, choosing cards, full assessment, treatment, reassessment, and energetic homework. She maintained her appetite, did not loose her hair, did not experience tremendous fatigue, and was able to work least part-time throughout her treatment.

EM FOR TRAUMA

I provide Energy Medicine sessions outside of school for M, a young woman who had been traumatized by a urology procedure when she was about 5 years old. The trauma pattern re-surfaced in M’s life when she was in new situations where trust had not yet been established. M was referred to me by her teacher when she entered high school and began having severe stomach aches and head aches resulting in missing many days of school. I worked with both her mother, who felt guilty about letting the trauma occur, and with M. Through the TYLEM Wound process and in particular, the drawings, M was able identify her wound pattern that also had relationship and belief aspects that we worked with. She learned that when she was fearful, her root, sacral and solar plexus chakras became compromised, and her Field, Hara Line, Central and Governing Meridians shifted up above her solar plexus, hence the stomach aches. She learned that when she managed her Hara Line to be grounded to the center of the earth, her headaches resolved. The key to maintaining her Hara Line grounding was teaching her to trace and energize her Central and Governing meridians. I recorded the Hara, Chakra, and Core Star meditations upon her request to assist her in her energetic self-care. Her absenteeism problem has been resolved. M’s mother presented with a relationship energy pattern with her daughter that was over powering and domineering. Their relationship was tense and the mother was what might be referred to as a “helicopter” mom: meaning hovering, directing, and correcting. With the TYLEM™ relationship work, the mother and daughter developed a relationship more appropriate for a mother/teen age daughter relationship as well as more empowering for M.

EM FOR PRE AND POST SURGERY

I provided surgical support for G, who had a hip replacement. I used the TYLEM™ Inner Core Balance, Energy Drain and Replenishment pre-operatively. Post-operatively in the recovery room, I again did the Inner Core Balance and was guided to repeat the shoulder to hip sequence, instead from hip to knee, then knee to foot to welcome and connect the new hip joint into the energy system. I then did an angel net to clear any unwanted energy, followed by Energy Integration at the new hip. G experienced 1-2 out of 10 post operative pain versus 8-9 out of 10 pain prior to the surgery. Because pain was not a limiting issue, he was able to ambulate sooner and his full recovery was 6 weeks ahead of schedule.
